The editorial gives to understand that Governor Telmadge, as national committeeman, will be on the floor of the democratic national convention at Philadelphia voicing his anti-New Deal views. The editorial shared interest with the situation growing out of Seminole's primary.

Discovered by howling dogs, Miss Thurber told Patrolman William J. Marshall she had lived in the cramped space under the porch of the unoccupied cottage with only one blanket for warmth. She had lost 25 pounds in weight.

Except for that, Dr. Clinton Whitehurst said she was unaffected. Police fed her chicken broth, toast and coffee. Later they turned her over to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thurber. WASHINGTON, March 5 .- (AP)-An assertion that the Department of Justice was "afraid of the issue" was made today by opposing counsel after the government abruptly withdrew its slum clearance case from the supreme court-leaving only two other New Deal controversies pending before that high tribunal.

The litigation withdrawn involved the right of the federal government to exercise the right of eminent domain in connection with projects in Louisville and Detroit. A motion to dismiss the cases was made by Solicitor-General Stanley Reed, only a few hours before the Louisville case was to have been argued.

So suddenly was the decision made that Charles G. Middleton, Louisville attorney, who has been here since Monday to argue against the government, said be did not know the action was contemplated until 30 minutes after Chief Justice Hughes had ordered the cases stricken from the docket.

The remaining New Deal cases involve the constitutionality of the 1933 securities act and the Guffey coal Committee Prepares for Test of Authority to Subpoena Telegrams.

WASHINGTON, March 5 .- (P)-Amid a new outburst of indignation at the reported mass seizure of telegrams by the senate lobby committee, Chairman Black, democrat, Alabama, today devoted the committee's hearings to preparations for a court test of its authority to subpoena such messages.

From officials of the Crew-Levick Company, an important subsidiary of Cities Service, Black drew statement that company records of last year's fight against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill for the regulation of public utility holding companies had been destroyed.

"And the only earthly way to obtain them would be to subpoena original telegrams from the telegraph companies?" Black asked.

"I presume so," replied A. R. Thorson, outspoken secretary of Crew-Levick, who said his own records had gone into the waste basket and added:

"The waste basket is the greatest of filing mediums when properly used."

Relieves Common Constipation* Safely

Read this statement, taken from an article in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, pages 133-134, Nov., 1932:

"The inclusion in the diet of a small portion of bran . . . would seem a very practical way of get-ting fiber which is not likely to be disintegrated. This bran has the a considerable amount of vitamin B and of readily available iron."

Announcement was made Wednesday of the formation of the firm of Irwin & Latimer for the general practice of law, by R. Beverly Irwin and W. Carroll Latimer, young Atlanta attorneys. The new firm will have offices in the Grant building.

Both members of the firm have been practicing here for the past four years and both are members of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club and the Georgia and American Bar Associations.

Latimer attended the University of Georgia and the Lumpkin Law school of the university, where he was president of the Interfraternity Council and prominent in student activities.

Irwin took his pre-legal training at Oglethorpe University, where he was valedictorian of his class. He studied law at the University of Georgia and Harvard University. Exhaustive tests, over a period of five years, have proved Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to be a safe, effective way to correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk" or fiber in meals. It is accepted by the American Medical Association Committee on Foods for this purpose.

Harry L. Hopkins today as the administration's high command gathered with President Roosevelt to see how much additional money must be appropriated to continue the program.

Before going to the White House Hopkins disclosed that work relief employment rolls would be slashed from its present 3,804,886 total to 3,300,000 during the next four months. Another plan for cutting unemployment came from a committee in George L. Berry's industrial counsel which proposed a creation of a new federal commission to regulate wages, hours and child labor in industry.

"Some Favorable, Some Not."

"Miss Perkins declined to say whether she thought Hopkins was right or wrong when he asserted some time ago that private industry was expected to absorb 200,000 of the unemployed each week from now until July 1.

"Certain indicators are favorable and certain ones are unfavorable," she and certain ones are unfavorable," she said. "It is Mr. Hopkins' business, as relief administrator, to predict just how much industry can do."

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(UP)
A powerful "mystery" gun—so "kickless" that a glass of water balanced safely on the weapon's barrel during bursts of fire—is being developed by the army and navy in another move to make American coastal and strategic interior cities invulnerable to hostile air attack.

The weapon, the United Presslearned, combines the best features of the machine gun and of artillery pieces. It is said to be capable of hurling one-pound, high explosive sheels to the edges of the stratesphere at the rate of 150 shots a minute. These projectiles are fitted in the nose of the bullets with detonating fuses so sensitive that they explosive carried in these projectiles is sufficient to blow the wing off a modern bomber if a wing surface is hit.

The ordnance experts who have developed this gun claim that it will revolutionize anti-aircraft defense. At present this defense is provided by resulation 30 and 50 caliber machine of the same rate of the sheepen developed the special provided by resulation 30 and 50 caliber machine contact with an ordinate the provided by neveral bursts of fire.

The projectiles of the 1.1 inch "kickless" gun explode upon contact. The gun is capable of firing them, at the rate of 150 per minute, to an altitude of 30,000 feet or more, which is well above the "ceiling" of any modern plane loaded with bombs.

Fired like a machine gun, the new weapon shoots a smoke "tracer" bullet every fifth shot. Due to the extreme ease with which the gun can be swung about while firing, the gunner is able by these tracer bullets to correct errors of fire so long as the target is within sight.

An anti-aircraft battery of six of these weapons could literally fill the air with high explosive projectiles at the rate of approximately 1,000 shots a minute, any one of which would disable a plane upon striking it.

NEW DEAL FARM ACT IS DECLARED 'VAGIF'

Agriculture Heads State Planters Cannot Understand Act Wording.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 5.—(P) A plan for widely varying subsidy payments for soil conservation, not only by commodities but also by state and regional lines, tonight was unfolded by AAA officials here to launch the administration's new farm program.

With the arrival of Secretary Wallace by plane tonight, the AAA high command was set to offer more than 500 farmer representatives a further explanation of the $500,000,000 program aimed to conserve fertility of the nation's soil resources.

Many of the farm leaders, openly dissatisfied with presentation of the first outline of the program, tonight plunged into committee sessions which officials said should find solution for many pressing problems. Eight special committees, including every farmer invited to Memphis, were appointed late today to study special details of the program.

At the conclusion of today's general session, several ranking AAA executives privately suggested that payments to farmers for preservation of soil fertility might follow these general outlines.

Administrator who is in charge of the meeting here, said the final detailed recommendations concerning rates of payment might be expected from the committee segsion keys and at Chi. committee sessions here and at Chi-cago, where a similar regional meeting is in progress.

Expected To Speak Once.

Plans for Wallace's appearance before the farmers were incomplete tonight, but he was expected to speak at least once. Wallace's address, and the efforts of Cully A. Cobb, AAA cot-ton section chief, were expected to speed the drafting of final plans need-ed to obtain almost immediate opera-tion of the program in the cotton Explaining the variation of pay a larger amount for shifting such land to soil conserving growths than would one who produced only 175 pounds.

This same ratio, it was indicated, would be applied on a national basis to all crops. But the flat payment per acre for land normally planted in soil conserving growths was expected to open the way for every farmer in the country to become eligible for some sort of subsidy.

A hint of interdependence of the south and the midwest came from Cobb, who told the farmers that the amount they will receive for cotton seed "will depend very greatly upon what our neighbor farmers in the corn and hog country do."

Cobb said there has been a general impossion that formers was permanel.

Would Depress Price.

Cobb said there has been a general impression that farmers were planning to produce a 14,000,000-bale cotton crop this year and he warned that "a 14,000,000-bale crop added to the cotton on hand August 1 could not help but seriously depress the price ... A 14,000,000-bale crop would also mean a drastic reduction in the production of food and feed for home consumption."

Cobb said "it has been determined that at least 10,000,000 acres in the cotton states should be taken out of soil-depleting crops and put into crops that build up the soil." LEADERS TO STUDY NEW FARM PROGRAM

NEW FARM PROGRAM

CHICAGO, March 5.—(P)—Midwestern and southern farm leaders, anxious to be about their spring planting, speeded critical studies tonight of the new agriculture adjustment program, which would limit major crops to an acreage of 270,000,000 for the nation.

As unfolded here and at a similar gathering in Memphis, Tenn., in a statement from Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, the program suggesting a $470,000,000 soil conservation-subsidy included these main points:

For diversion of tobacco land, an average of about 5 cents a pound or about $40 an acre.

For diversion of corn land, a maximum average of about $12 an acre in the richest and most productive part of the corn belt.

For diversion of wheat land, from $5 to $10 an acre on the basis of a yield of 12 to 24 bushels an acre.

These payments, an official said, would include the flat payment of from 50 cents to $1 an acre which the AAA would make to farmers for maintenance of the normal number of acres of soil conserving crops.

H. R. Tolley, former assistant AAA administrator who is in charge of the meeting here, said the final detailed recommendations concerning rates of accretary's statement added the recommendations according to the sections of the country.

The secretary's statement added the plan would attain besides its major plan would attain besides its major objectives of soil conservation and a fair income level for the farmers, adequate protection for the consumers in assuring them sufficient food and fiber for domestic requirements during 1936.

Text of Statement by Wallace Outlining New Farm Aid Plans

CHICAGO, March 5.—(AP)—The text of a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace concerning plans for putting into effect provisions of the new soil conservation and domestic allotment act, as read simultaneously today at regional farm conferences here and at Memphis, Tenn., follows:

The regional conferences at Chicago, Memphis, New York and Salt Lake City have been called so that farmers, farmers' representatives and those who will be concerned in administration problems may give their advice and assistance in the development of a national program for their advice and assistance in the de-velopment of a national program for 1936 under the new soil conservation and domestic allotment act.

In order that a plan for this year may be offered to farmers with the least possible delay, I am submitting the broad outlines of the program the department has been considering, the department has been considering, and I am inviting your criticisms and suggestions for improvement in line with the farming needs of your region. To assure the closest cooperation of farmers in operating a program, it is best to begin by seeking their advice and help in working out that program.

The fundamental purposes of the new act were defined by President Roosevelt when he signed it.

MAJOR OBJECTIVES
LINKED WITH WELFARE

LINKED WITH WELFARE

"The new law," the President said, "has three major objectives which are inseparably and of necessity linked with the national welfare. The first of these aims is conservation of the soil itself through wise and prop-er land use. The second purpose is the re-establishment and maintethe re-establishment and mainte-nance of farm income at fair levels so that the gains made by agricul-ture in the past three years can be preserved and fational recovery can continue. The third major objective is the protection of consumers by as-suring adequate supplies of food and fiber now and in the future."

The national yeal of the tentative

The national goal of the tentative program for 1936 calls for an in-crease in the area of crop land in soil-conserring and soil-building crops such as grasses and legumes from the 1930 level of about 100 million acres to about 130 million acres. This increase would result in a stoppage of much watte of soil, and an increase in the permanent value of farm land. It would mean increased assurance of adequate production of food and fiber in years to come. SOIL-DEPLETING CROPS

As compared to the 100-million-acre average in soil-building crops, farm average in soil-building crops, farmers of the nation until recently have been planting 'c soil-depleting crops about 300 million acres, or an area three times as great. Use of 270 million acres in 1936 for crops which deplete the soil would be ample at average yields to provide the nation a supply of food and fiber equal to domestic consumption in the 1920-1929 period, taking into consideration the period, taking into consideration the modifying provisions in the act.
In order to accomplish the national goal of increased plantings of crops which protect and impr ve the soil, it is necessary first to classify crops into two main groups—one main group consisting of soil-building and group consisting of soil-building and soil-conserving crops, and the other group consisting of major soil-depleting crops. A plan of classification has been worked out and will be submitted to the group at this meeting for review and further suggestions.

Next, it is necessary to adopt a rule or measure by which each farm-rule or measure by which each farmer can determine the part or acreage of his cultivated land which normally has been planted to soil-depleting crops, and, wherever practicable, the part which normally has been the part which normally has been planted to soil-conserving and soil-building crops. For 1936, the objective would be to increase plantings of soil-building or soil-conserving crops by shifting or diverting acreage formerly in soil-depleting crops to the soil-building and soil-conserving crops. The aim would be to obtain the greatest percentage of increase in soil-building crops in those areas where soil exhaustion is most areas where soil exhaustion is most

PLANS ARE WORKED OUT FOR ESTABLISHING BASES

After careful study, a tentative plan for establishing bases has been worked out and is offered for further suggestion and improvement. The proposal is to use as the principal guides the acreages as they were in 1935. Consideration should also be 1935. Consideration should also be given to adjustments to correct for unusual conditions and recent changes in the use of crop land. Farmers would estimate carefully their normal acreages of soil-depleting crops. These estimates would be checked for possible error under the direction of the county committees so as to establish qualifications to receive assume the county committees. receive payments.

Information which farmers will find essential in preparing to participate in the program would include (1) the normal acreage of all soil-

(1) the normal acreage of all soil-depleting crops grown on the farm, and wherever practicable the normal acreage devoted to soil-improving crops, (2) the normal yield per acre of the major soil-depleting crop grown on the farm and (3) the acreage to be devoted to soil-conserving and soil-depleting uses in 1936.

As delevoped for discussion in these regional conferences, the plan proposes a system of conservation payments to farmers who wish to participate. This plan proposes that (1) a moderate soil-maintenance payment be made for each acre, up to a maximum, planted to soil-conserving or soil-building crops or devoted to approved soil-conversation practice in 1936, and (2) a larger voted to approved soil-conversation practice in 1936, and (2) a larger voted to approved soil-conversation practice in 1936, and (2) a larger soil-improvement payment per acre be made for each acre shifted from soil-depleting crops to soil-conserving or soil-building crops, provided that this payment would be made only up to a specified maximum percentage. The maximum percentage of change in use of land on which payment would be made would be established for a region or a state for the purpose of assuring maintenance of an adequate supply of commodities grown principally in that region or state, and of keeping within budget limitations. The amount of the soil-improvement payment would vary according to productivity of the land. The soil-maintenance payment per acre on land already in soil-building crops would assist farmers who have been following good system of farming to continue and improve their systems. This payment also would help farmers whose farming systems have been so far out of balance that in the first year they could qualify only for this type of grant.

LARGER PAYMENTS PERMIT CHANGE IN PROGRAMS CHANGE IN PROGRAMS

CHANGE IN PROGRAMS

The larger soil-improvement payments would allow those farmers who have been forced into intensive aystems of farming in order to "make both ends meet" to change to a more extensive type of farming that would protect the future productivity of their farms as well as meet their present needs. The actual amount which could be paid farmers would vary from region to region and from farm to farm, according to the productivity of the soil, and, in the south, according to the soil-depleting crop from which diversion was made to a soil-conserving crop.

In the case of farms occupied by share tenants or share croppers, it is proposed to divide the payments between landlords and those actually occupying the land. Farmers renting for cash would receive the entire payment.

The new act carries a specific limit of 500 million dollars on the total amount of obligations that may be incurred in any calendar year. It also limits the amount that may be appropriated for any fiscal year to 500 million dollars. To make possible a continuing program, annual appropriations by congress will be required.

3440,000,000 IS SOUGHT

$440,000,000 IS SOUGHT FOR SOIL CONSERVATION

There is now pending before congress a bill appropriating $440,000,000 for carrying out the 1936 soil-conservation program. It is possible that other funds may become available, and that these may bring the total up to 470 millions. This is a definite top to expenditures in 1936. total up to 470 millions. This is a definite top to expenditures in 1936. If soil-maintenance payments are made at the rate of 75 cents to $1 an acre, these payments would total from 75 to 100 million dollars. Allowance has to be made for administrative expenses in Washington and in the field. On this basis, there would be left for distribution as soil-improvement payments somewhere in improvement payments somewhere in the neighborhood of 350 million dol-lars. It will be seen that the finan-cial limitations laid down in the act are such that great care must be taken in the country as a whole and in each state to stay within the limi-tations. tations.

In addition to the funds available

In addition to the funds available for both kinds of soil - conservation payments, congress has made available, under various provisions of the agricultural adjustment act and related legislation, funds for the removal of surpluses, including specific funds for the removal of surpluses dairy products, for diversion of products from the normal channels of trade, expansion of domestic and export markets, and for payments in connection with that portion of comconnection with that portion of com-modities used for domestic consump-MINIMUM PERFORMANCE REQUIREMENTS FIXED

To make sure that each farmer re-

To make sure that each farmer receiving a conservation payment carries out genuine soil conservation operations on his farm, it is proposed that minimum performance in certain respects be required before he can qualify. This minimum performance would include (1) having in 1936 an acreage of soil-conserving crops equal to not less than a given per cent of the total acreage devoted to soil-depleting crops or a given per cent of the-base acreage of soil-conserving crops, or as possible alternaserving crops, or as possible alterna-tives in lieu of this minimum acre-age, the adoption of designated prac-tices with respect to soil conservation or erosion control; (2) having in 1936 an acreage of soil-depleting crops not in excess of the soil-depleting base acreage determined for the farm, and (3) maintaining in 1936 the acreage formerly devoted to food and feed crops for home consumption.

The proposed administrative organization in the field would be demganization in the field would be democratic in principle and procedure and would be built around county associations of farmers, represented by county and community committees. In those counties which specialize in one crop and which consequently had only one county committee or association under the admittee or association under the admitted the second country and the second country association under the admitted the second country and the second country as a second coun mittee or association under the ad-justment act, this committee would continue to function pending perma-nent organization. In counties having committees or associations representing more than one commodity, a new committee would be set up to represent a combination of the former committees, including representmer committees, including representatives of the county program planning committee. This new combination committee would serve pending permanent organization in the field. The organization would call for a single state board or committee. Cooperation of state land grant colleges and state extension services will be sought just as those agencies were asked to co-operate in working out the adjustment programs.

FARMERS EITHER READY OR ALREADY PLANTING

The conditions which farmers need to know in order to participate in the program have been decided upon quickly since farmers are already planting or preparing to plant, and the limited time will prevent a high degree of regional refinements in the plan. However, at the meetings being held this week and next in the south, the middle west the far weet and held this week and next in the south, the middle west, the far west, and the northeast, special attention will undoubtedly be given to the conditions and needs of these four great regions. The 1936 plan, it is expected, will provide for regional differences in the kind and number of acres to be diverted from soil-depleting to soil-conserving cross. This dificres to be diverted from soil-deplet-ing to soil-conserving crops. This dif-ferentiation, the proposed payments on average already devoted to soil-conserving or soil-building crops, and the fact that farmers will have a rather wide rather wide range within which to adjust their farming plan will com-bine to offer a flexible program to the individual farmers. RESEARCH IS PLANNED FOR 1937 PROGRAM

Meanwhile, research to provide a basis for a 1937 program needs to be begun as soon as the 1936 program is decided upon. During the remain-der of this year, efforts will be made to bring together the results of the experimental and demonstrational work which is now being done. This includes comprehensive research of the soil-conservation service, results of the regionad adjustment studies of last summer and fall, findings of the last summer and fall, findings of the farm groups now engaged in county planning projects and information which the land grant college experiment stations are assembling. In this way, a more thoroughly scientific basis will be made available for the programs of 1937 and later years.

By next year it should be possible to make further allowance for differences between regions and states.

ferences between regions and states. Gradually a series of state programs, each adapted to the needs of the farmers of that state and fitting into the needs of the nation as a whole, should be worked out. These plans will lay the basis for the state-federal co-operative program which the law provides must be in effect no later than January 1, 1938.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

SAFEGUARDS WASHINGTON, March 5 .- The quiet little game of congressional leaders now is to provide President Roosevelt's corporation reform taxes with what may be more or less "safeguards."

Mr. Roosevelt failed to mention any of these in his message, but, of Mr. Roosevelt failed to mention any of these in his message, but, of ish colony along Ethiopia's southern course, they are necessary. One eminent house leader suggested a flat border, where mountain glaciers al-

Consequently all the present excitement as to the effects of the reform appear to be premature. The proof of the pudding will be in the making and eating thereof, and not in the recipe which the White House submitted. The real effect will not be the tax, but in the exemptions. That matter is being taken care of with a smoothness and ceferity which suggests mutual consent, if not pre-arrangement.

Note—There are two accepted congressional methods of killing a White House suggestion with which the leaders are not personally in Circus Running Wild.

White House suggestion with which the leaders are not personally in sympathy. One is to fight it, and the other is to smother it with affection, to safeguard it to death. The latter method is always less painful HUMOR Mr. Roosevelt's smile was as wide as a watermelon rind when he sent his tax message to congress. In fact, one of the reasons why he did not go up to read it himself is supposed to be that he could not trust himself to keep from laughing.

The inner mirth was widespread. Some of the New Deal tax reform experts fell out of their chairs chuckling. The reason for all the merriment was this:

Here was Mr. Roosevelt, who tried last year to tax bigness, and congress turned him down. Here was a congress passing a bonus bill and the supreme court knocking out a processing tax, both over his objections. So what does he do, but disguise his old bigness-tax idea as a needed revenue correction and ship it back up to congress as almost EXCUSE Congress and Wall Street may have been a little confused about Mr. Roosevelt's purpose, but any tax expert could see through it. What they generally saw was this:

Mr. Roosevelt took a bad enforcement defect to start with. Several rich people are escaping high surtax rates by having their corporation.

rich people are escaping high surtax rates by having their corporations rest of Kenya is a British crown colaccumulate undivided profits. Everyone is against that. Vice President ony. Garner, who is not exactly a brain truster, campaigned against it for He wrote several restrictions into tax laws designed to correct the situation, but all have been ineffective.

Upon that tehnical defect, Mr. Roosevelt built a new and bigger idea He proposed to plug the loophole with a whole new system of corporate He would force all corporations to distribute all their earnings hereafter and then get his tax revenue out of the stockholders who re

It is essentially the same fundamental attack on bigness as represented in the Frankfurter-Brandeis tax philosophy. That is as large a peg as has ever been offered for a minor loophole.

MORALS It was hardly an oversight that Mr. Roosevelt neglected to MORALS It was hardly an oversight that Mr. Roosevelt neglected to go into the moral benefits of such a tax. Those of his advisers who know what moral benefits were considered, and who favor them, outline them something like this:

Woozy thinkers up there jumped to the conclusion that a distribution of all corporate earnings would increase the value of stocks. It would, but not under Mr. Roosevelt's program.

The fundamental fact is that Mr. Roosevelt proposed to tax $620, 000,000 a year more out of corporate earnings. Anyone can see upon reflection that his program would actually depreciate the real worth of corporate stocks by that amount.

The price of stocks is supposed to be based on net worth. That means reserves as well as earnings and dividends. the earnings does not change the material value of the corporation. Instead, the distribution weakens the financial position of the corporation, and the additional taxes make its stock worth that much less.

The Woodpecker Family Is Doomed When It Forgets How To Peck Wood

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Scientists who spend their lives studying insects agree that ants, whether guided by reason or instinct, are most like men.

They have a form of government; they build barns and store supplies the winter; they have professional soldiers who do nothing but guard colony and repulse invaders; they make war against neighboring tribes; they keep aphids, as men keep cows, sending them out to graze under guard and "milking" them at regular intervals; and some of them, doubtless the Nordics of the insect world, keep slaves.

The slave-holders evidently have been a "superior" race for untold ages, for they have lost the ability to feed themselves without a slave's assistance. In fact, they will starve to death in the midst of abundant food if no slave is around to chew it for them.

This, alone, is enough to prove their kinship with man. When Henry Adams first went to Washington, back in ante-bellum days, he was fresh from prim, precise and prosperous Boston, and the southern village shocked and disgusted him. With the exception of the public buildings, it was a village of un-painted shacks, unpaved, littered with trash and naked pickaninnies, and logs rooted in the mud of the main streets.

"This," Adams philosophized, "is what slavery does to a country."
He might have added politics, but he wasn't far wrong.
Centuries of sad human experience have shown that neither individuals nor empires can survive the softening and debasing influence of too much "service." One born to riches and schooled to bear responsibilities may have a valet to pull on his pants without spoiling him, but the ordinary individual is ruined by too much leisure and too many servants. They rot his character till he falls so low he will sit still and call a menial to hand him any article two feet beyond his reach. It isn't natural for man to live by the sweat of another's brow, and to violate nature is to ask for trouble. The meek shall inherit the earth because they alone will know how to keep the machines going.

TALMADGE SWITCHING, WASHINGTON BELIEVES

Georgia Sources Report Governor Has Given Up Primary Plans.

Primary Plans.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, March 5.—Based on a variety of reports received from responsible sources in the state, Georgia delegation members are now about convinced that Governor Talmadge has given up any plans he may have had for calling a preferential primary.
There is growing belief, in fact, that he may in time even abandon any attempt to wreat the Georgia national convention delegation from President Roosevelt by naming the delegates personally in lieu of a primary. Heretofore it has been assumed that Talmadge forces would seek to send a hand-picked slate of uninstructed delegates to the Philadelphia convention if a primary is not called.
Close friends of the Governor are known to have advised against proceeding further with his anti-Roosevelt campaign. They have emphasized the effect such a course, if continued, would have on any future political plans he may have.

On the other hand, it has been pointed out to him that it may not be too late to regain some of his lost following by retiring from the presidential fight as gracefully as the circumstances permit. He could do this, his friends have reminded him, by making the simple announcement that Georgia is for Roosevelt and consequently he will not seek to throw any further obstacles in the way of a Roosevelt-instructed delegation.

Whether or not the Governor has actually reached this conclusion yet observers of state affairs are more or less sure that he will before many more weeks roll by. As the other states, one by one, complete their convention alates and it becomes obvious to the most dubious of the remaining doubtful Thomases that Roosevelt's renomination is certain, Talmadge, it is held, can hold out no longer. The alternative would be to stamp himself as the most misguided and misinformed politician in the country.

outlined the situation almost identical with that of Speaker Rivers.
Speaker Rivers charges that the situation indirectly was brought about the state from participating in the Roosevelt program to some extent. In his letter, Mr. Rivers asserts that the Governor not only is seeking to usurp the function of the legislature, but the judiciary as well, revealing that before January 15 the Governor sought to have State Treasurer George B. Hamilton pay the appellate and superior court judges in order that any case which might be brought before them would be heard by judges who themselves already had received their salaries.

The letter of Speaker Rivers follows in full:

lows in full: As speaker of the house of representatives I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the splendid editorials you have been carrying concerning the state financial situation. Particularly do I want to thank and congratulate you for your editorial of this morning, defending the general assembly from the un-warranted attacks of the Governor. I have been silent for what I con-sider a good reason. I do not wish to engage in an argument with the Governor. In the first place you cannot argue or reason with the Governor. In the first place you cannot argue or reason with the Governor. He proclaims and declares a thing and from then on with him that thing is a fact. No matter what I might have said, no matter what I will say now the Governor will seek to controvert it to his own political betterment, to add to his power.

Praises Legislators.

In a long and pleasant legislative career I have never served with a more honorable group of men and woman than composed the 1935 general assembly. I have the profoundest regard for all, even for those with whom I have differed on occasion. They were moved by a purpose to serve the people who elected them and I cannot stand by and see their character assassinated by any man for political purposes.

Personally I do not think the people are immediately interested in who is to blame for the present terrible situation. I believe the people are more interested in an immediate remedy. After the remedy has been applied the people may take stock and find out themselves who is to blame. The remedy lies in an orderly meeting of the general assembly. The Governor will call no such meeting. Therefore there will be no remedy save only such a tonic that the Governor may be able to provide without calling the assembly. Of course the Governor knows that the people will not let the insane, the tubercular, the blind and the orphans suffer. Of course the Governor knows that the people will not permit the convicts to be turned loose to roam and ruin the state, although he has turned loose a fair share himself. Of course the Governor knows that the people will not permit the University System to close its doors nor the common schools to quit when there is anything that can be done to keep them open.

Blames Legislature.

The Governor in his latest attempt to usurp the powers of the general assembly and the judiciary blames the assembly and the judiciary blames the general assembly and particularly those members of the general assembly who served on a committee which went to Washington during the middle of the last session to study those phases of President Roosevelt's recovery program which pertained to Georgia's participation.

I served as speaker of the 1933 and 1934 general assembly. I was elected without the assistance of the Governor yet I tried to do every-with him or not. Unable to dominate the 1933 legor the Governor started to make speeches all over Georgia demanding that the people send to Atlanta a general assembly which would help him carry out his program. He announced for re-election and was successful.

Confidence Misplaced.

I participated in my own feeble way in Governor Talmadge's cam-paign for re-election. His opposi-tion suddenly charged that he was tion suddenly charged that he was not in sympathy with the program of our great humanitarian President, Mr. Roosevelt. This I could not believe. At his insistence in a speech at Waycross I branded these charges false in no uncertain terms. To the people of Georgia I must now admit that my confidence was misplaced, as was thousands of other Georgians. The Governor thought the same of the President then as he thinks today. He wilfully misled me and others to the contragy.

day. He wiltuly misled and ers to the contrary.

Even after his re-election the Governor kept those followers of his who were ardent supporters of the President in the dark as to his real feeling toward Mr. Rossevelt.

In January, 1935, with the pledges of 188 out of 205 members of the house safely locked in my desk, I announced my candidacy for re-election as speaker. The Governor, realizing that I had these pledges, announced that he was supporting me. I felt then, and I know now, that if the Governor had had the slightest idea that he could have defeated me for speaker he would have done so. But he knew he couldn't and he did not try.

The general assembly, anxious that Georgia should get her pro-rata share of all federal money, named a committee to go to Wash-ington to discuss the same with the men and women President Roose-velt had appointed to administer his program. wasn't going to be any companion legislation in Georgia if he could help it.

"The Governor asked the committee to let him dictate its report, saying that if so he could use it in a campaign against the President. He promised us that he would emblazon our names on the front page of every periodical in the country. We declined to accede to his wish. We would not let him make politics out of our trip. We knew that we were dealing with human lives and we declined to barter them away that the Governor might advance himself.

"We went away from that visit feeling that the Governor never would support the President. But what we did not feel was that he would be bold enough to go forth in Georgia and elsewhere seeking to tear down everything that the President was building, seeking the very office of president itself.

Passed Legislation.

Passed Legislation.

"But the general assembly of Georgia was elected by the people and not by the Governor. It was responsible to the people and not to the Governor. So the day after our visit to the Governor we went to the capitol and in the house proceeded to enact such legislation as would promptly make available to the state her part of federal relief funds.

The Governor got busy and he killed our bills in the senate.

Chief among the features of this legislation was an amendment to our state constitution which would have permitted us to share in the Passed Legislation.

legislation was an amendment to our state constitution which would have permitted us to share in the benefits of old-age pensions.

This proposed amendment went through the house and senate with flying colors. The Governor promptly vetoed it.

The house passed the amendment over his veto but the senate stood by him. I do not believe he had authority to veto such an amendment but he did.

he did.

The other legislation died in senate committees. Why? Because with only 51 members in the senate the Governor did not need but a handful to carry his point. He got them. He has some of them on the state pay roll today. Others he has performed services for and is continuing to aid. Whether these jobs were given would have granted tax exemptions on owner-occupied homes and also an intangible tax amendment. At the Governor's persuasion we abandoned our program and accepted his.

The Governor came before a joint meeting of the house and senate. He was loud in his praise of the general assembly. He said he had never seen or heard of a general assembly which had done its work so well. This was only three days before the close of the session. The Governor wanted the tax limitation voted. So anxious was I to cooperate that I came down off the speaker's stand and made a speech which I believe aided materially in passing this amendment.

which I believe aided materially in passing this amendment.

This done, the Governor was through with the assembly. He had everything he wanted.

During those last two days of the session and ever since he has had nothing but contempt for the legislature. Why? Because it had power that he wanted.

As director of the budget the Governor had submitted an appropriation bill which increased the appropriations to a few of his favorite departments, including the Governor's office, the Department of Agriculture, and the military department, where everyone knows only where everyone Talmadge henchmen hold forth.

The bill went to the house committee on appropriations. There by a unanimous vote the figures were changed. The Governor's favorite departments were put where they were originally, and the people's favorite departments were given what the committee believes to be as adequate support as the revenue of the state would permit.

The school appropriation was made $4,250,000 as against $4,000,000 favored by the Governor. Administrator Hopkins had told us that if we gave the schools $4,250,000 he would gave the schools $4,250,000 he would add another million and a half or two million. The total would have been reasonably adequate. It looked like the first square deal Georgia's common schools had ever had was coming to them. coming to them.

The house made certain that this would not be cut. It provided that other appropriations could be pared down if the revenue was not forth-coming.

When the bill got to the senate he controlled the Governor went to work. He succeeded in having the bill rewritten and the figures he originally fixed placed back in it. He also succeeded in killing our provision which would have barred a cut in the school funds.

Didn't Want U. S. Funds. Didn't Want U. S. Funds.

He didn't want any federal money to come into Georgia's schools. He knew that his kind of political tactics would not thrive in good times. Demagogues are at their height only when the common people are at their lowest.

The bill went into conference. Every conferee named on the part of the senate was chosen by the Governor. They were given their instructions. They were given their instructions. They were told to kill the bill. Then the Governor could do with the funds as he wished.

The Governor got what he wanted.

Then the Governor could do with the funds as he wished.

The Governor got what he wanted. He did not want the funds of the people to be dispensed by the legislature chosen by the people. He wanted them to be dispensed by the Governor and those of his choosing.

Now we come down to the present. The Governor did not want Comptroller General William B. Harrison and State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, elected by the people, handling the money. These two men had minds of their own. The Governor wanted officials who would do just what he told them, no more, no less. I happen to know that early in January the Governor demanded of George Hamilton that he pay the judges of our supreme court, the court of appeals and the superior courts on January 15. This, despite the fact that the judges are not normally paid until the first of the month. The Governor wanted the judges paid so that he could intimidate them by saying that they had their money and defying them to refuse to permit him to pay others. There was a continuing appropriageneral assembly. He tried to put the blame there. He couldn't forget that he was still campaigning against the New Deal, probably with republican money, so he brought the President and his hundreds of thousands of Georgia supporters into it, too. He blamed them.

Can it be that the Governor knows that his days are numbered? Can it be that he knows that the state is through with him and his kind? There is one force stronger in Georgia than the will of the Governor and his bayonets. That force cannot be denied its opportunity to assert itself. The Governor and his cohorts will learn their fate in due time.

booting him out. The Governor knew he needed that money. He knew also that if Mr. Harrison wasn't there to get it the oil companies would be likely to put it up with the courts to hold it. Once that money was paid in, the Governor was through with Mr. Harrison.

Then our noble state was treated to the sorry specials of a detail of

They appropriated to the Department of Agriculture 97 per cent of the fees to be collected by that office, which would have amounted to an increase of $100,000 over the appropriations made by the house and restored to the executive department, under another name, the increased appropriation which the house refused to approve and struck from the appropriation to the common schools the proviso of the house bill which prohibited the Governor from reducing this appropriation.

The Governor then proceeded to praise the assembly for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving the suspension of the public service commissioners; for approving this diversion of $2,000,000 from

The Daniel action yesterday reveals that at least two members of the department of law staff are not following Attorney-General M. J. This bright victory was the only comfort that the morning brought to the Earl. When court opened at 10 o'clock, the Earl started in to re-sume the apparently endless argument that he had started the day before. No one questions the political acumen of Governor Talmadge. This he has demonstrated in the past. For Governor Talmadge to allow this committee to draw him into a Georgia primary would be most unfortunate for the state, its citizens and himself. There is no possible way in which Georgia could profit by such procedure. It would only mean the personal aggrandizement of a few Georgia politicians who have the political bee buzzing in their bonnets.

Let's analyze the primary procedure, if there be one. If Governor Talmadge should enter his name in a primary and win, a state convenbegan his statement at the first by declaring that he had no criticism to make of Key for not reappointing him to the police committee this year and that he had no knowledge of the reason but had a "good idea" why he was removed.

Key Testimony. Mayor Key laid blame for illegal and irregular release of impounded cars squarely on the shoulders of former police committee members and charged meddling and interfering madge delegation. The credentials committee, always controlled by the administration in power, would recognize the delegation favorable to the titular head of the democratic party, which is the President. The Talmadge charged meddling and interfering council members with responsibility for recurring police department rows.

Key: "I'm going to tell you his one fault. A good executive must know how to take it on the chin. I've learned to do that. Chief Sturdivant hasn't. He is of a nervous temperament. A lot of foolish complaints come into his office and he loses patience.

Newlyweds Faced With Problem Of Planning House To Suit Gifts

By Sally Forth.

DERHAPS you have heard the story of the girl who liked a pair of shoes so well that she bought them, and then had to buy an out-fit to wear with them. Phoebe and Neal Baird are in a somewhat similar position. For they received so many lovely pieces of antique furniture that now they have to build their new home on Wesley road to suit their wedding gifts. One of the loveliest of their many articles is an antique chest of drawers given them by Frampton Ellis. Mr. Ellis is quite an authority on furniture of this type, and he chose it for its graceful design and the fluted columns that beautify the front

Phoebe's two great-aunts, the Misses Mumford, of Richmond, Va., have given her a beautiful antique tilttop table, which she prizes very highly, for it is an exact replica of a table which belonged to her great-mother and said, "Mama, how much did we weigh?"

WHEN Mr. Husband appeared before his charming wife great-grandmother. The table is of mahogany, and is eccentrically charming in design. Mrs. Ken-yon Zahner presented the couple an extraordinary antique washstand which so closely re-sembles a cabinet that they will probably use it for one. It is designed in mahogany, with spindle legs, and is trimmed with in-lay, which adds greatly to its appearance. Phoebe and Neal were quite ecstatic when they found that, upon pushing a button, a matching mahogany mirror appears above the cabinet.

Mrs. E. L. Bishop, aunt of the bride, gave them a lovely set of Coalport china, which was given to her as a wedding present. This type of china is very scarce now, as the pattern is extinct. She also gave them an antique Sheffield tray, and many other unusual antiques which she has saved for this occasion. The fireplace in the new home will be adorned by a handsome pair of antique andirons, which were sent them by Bob and Martha Mizell Davis, who have been Phoebe and Neal's friends for many years.

SALLY hears that the bachelors' dinner tendered Tom Sanders on the eve of his marriage to Mary Claire Shipp was a riot of fun. Attended by a group of Tom's closest friends, the affair was marked for its originality and informality. Many surprise stunts were presented for the honor guest's benefit and innumerable toasts drunk to his future health and happiness.
Sally is informed that the speeches made by each guest when he presented Tom with a gift were humorous to the nth degree. Among the gifts brought for the future benedict were live bunny rabbits, goldfish swimming in glass bowls, books discussing what a husband should know, etc. A fortune teller arrived during dinner to foretell Tom's fortune. The seeress informed the future bridegroom that his life would be the reverse of the old adage, "single blessedness to double

'YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!' By IDA JEAN KAIN.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

EXERCISE AND WEIGH Exercise takes off and put
wes. Corrective exercises

Ida Jean Kain. exercise breaks up the vicious cirknow that when you are tired and below par, your appetite is capricious and you eat less. Consequently, you become thinner and more easily fatigued, and your nervous tension increases and interferes with sleep.

Exercise breaks this circle by stimulating appetite, toning the digestive system and nourishing the tissues. Adequate exercise, rest, fresh air and sunshine bring release from nerve tension, which makes it possible for you to relax and get your beauty sleep.

Think of exercise as a weight normalizer, for whether your curves need restraint or encouragement, exercise works figure magic. For example, an overweight person, an underweight, and a normal weight may all take the same exercise and—each given her normal share of rest and food—the fat person will lose in weight, the thin one will soften her angles, and the nor-mal weight will improve her figure. If you are underweight, take your exercise in small doses, avoid strain and never continue any activity to the point of fatigue. Of course, at the same time, you must impease your calorie intake above your uirement to provide nature with the material for curves.

All figures benefit from exercise, whereas all types do not benefit from diet. The results are gradual but cumulative, and while there are no sudden changes from bad measurements to perfect, you have it in your power to evolve a progressively better figure.

Now I am not a thwarted parent, nor are my children unduly restricted. There is seldom any discord about their comings and going but-when 1 what exercise does for the overweight figure, but we are inclined to belittle the value of exercise for the underweight as an aid to figure charm. Healthful exercise breaks up the vicious circunderweight. You are tired and besettle is capricious

It is the perfect normalizing exercise, and you could do not him possible to each set of muscles are their proportionate share of activity without strain. It is the perfect normalizing exercise, and you could do not him possible to each set of muscles are their comings and going but—when I say "No"—I am obeyed. Modern youth has many fine characteristics set near par excellent. Not only does swimming help to fill out the deficient straint. From my little corner I see the vast majority of parents, help-less, in a fog, worried and needing constructive advice. Then there are too many parents (and their ranks are swelling) who are trying to ape youth. In my acquaintance, I am sad to figure than to join a swim class.

We have a set of exercises for chest constructive advice. Then there are too many parents (and their ranks are swelling) who are trying to ape youth. In my acquaintance, I am sad to say, many of them are the cocktail variety that have little reserve left—after their all-too-frequent indulgences—to handle intelligently the problem of child training.

The jailer type of parent is strange to me though I don't doubt you have plenty of complaints from the jailed. Nevertheless, I think they are in the minority. You have been writing to this minority. Naturally you don't receive complaints from children who are doing as they please. "Mutual friendship" and "confidential companionship" between parent and child is all well but there comes a time when a parent must say "No," and when that "No" is resented and considered unreasonable by the child it must still be obeyed. The decline of parental authority hasn't helped our children nor fitted them to face a world full of laws. Both natural and civic laws must be obeyed if freedom is to be preserved and maintained. Disobedience and defiance at home result in law-breaking in later life. I don't wonder that many fathers and mothers are concerned over their failure to control their children.

The girls of 20 who are forbidden to have dates at home are few com-pared with the girls of 20, and youngpared with the girls of 20, and younger, who are out drinking all hours of the night while distracted mothers wait at home for them. Both are wrong, of course, but again I make my plea for parents first, to set an example of true and righteous living and then firmly to wield their right (and duty) of discipline over the adolescent young. If love and reason fail, and they do at times, the last result is the "purse strings."

Now be a good girl, scold the obstreperous children for a change and encourage the poor parents to stick to their guns. READER.

ANSWER:

Are there any obstreperous children who got that way without benefit of parental folly or stupidity or tyranny? I doubt it, assuming they are normal children. Far be it from me to urge any parents of this type to stand by their guns; rather to turn their guns on themselves. their guns on themselves.

My sympathies are with the children of parents who have no sympathy with their own progeny. My sympathies are with the children of parents who are exclusively concerned with having their arbitrary laws obeyed without troubling to make the children see the wisdom and justice of the laws. My sympathies are with the children of the "cocktail variety," parents who by their "all-too-frequent" induigences render themselves unfit morally and mentally to cope with the problems of child-training, parents who have forfeited their right to make rules and regulations, yet make them and wonder they are not obeyed.

I don't agree that tyrannical par-ents are in minority, either. There are a lot of men and women who believe that parenthood gives them the divine right of rule over their chil-dren, body and soul. Many of them dren, body and soul. Many of them are pious and puritanical and boister their tyranny with quotations from a famous textbook that says "Children, obey your parents," yet fail to recall the other sentence which reads "Parents, provoke not your children to wrath." The decline of parental authority is in some measure a backlick from just such unreasonable autogracy.

The early discipline in the home is the child's best preparation for life and determines his attitude to-ward law and order for the rest of his days. But—any parental discipline that is unfair to the child's mind, any restrictions that are unjust, any demands that are unreasonable—fall short of the mark of sonable—fall short of the mark of training a child to respect authority. There's a tip-top illustration of the principle in the working of a law that has recently been on our statute books, of some states. Men and women who had always been law-abiding, exemplary citizens thought their personal rights had been shamelessly violated in that law. They defied it, broke it at will and justified themselves in doing so. This same thing happens when parents inflict arbitrary rules on their children without troubling to show the young ones how and why the rules are fair and just.

Disobedience and defiance at home does result in making lawbreakers of the children once they are out in the world. But the normal child properly handled by his parents isn't defiant or disobedient. If he has been trained in the way he should go, he goes. Solomon himself said so.

Every revolutionary movement goes too far and has to walk back some distance. The children pave gone too far in flouting their fathers' and mothers' opinions and their authority. But when they come back, as they will, both parents and children will have learned something. It is generally those who come after that profit by revolutions. Those in revolt and those whom they are revolting against usually get shot and killed or wounded. So it is with the parents and the children of today.

Nancy Knows Many Ways of Serving Fish.

By FLORENCE La GANKE

The Page family was observing Lenten fast days. Nancy believed that every family pocketbook was grateful for more than one fish day a week. And since she had quite a repertoire of fish dishes and since Peter was fond of sea food of all kinds it was easy for her.

For instance, she frequently served

Every instance, she frequently served an oyster stew for Saturday noon luncheon or for Sunday supper. It could go into the menu on any other day as well. She had oysters baked on the shells which had been imbedded in rock salt before being put in the oven. They came to the table still in this bedding.

Shrimp salad was a favorite. For this she used shrimps, finely cut celery and canned peas. She used a mayonnaise with this salad. She made shrimp wiggle. This was nothing more than shrimps put in a cream sauce with cooked peas. Then she had fish loaf and fish balls. For these she usually used the packaged salted cod.

This was shredded and freshened by soaking in hot water. Then the shredded fish was cooked with peeled potatoes in unsalted water. The two

Some cooks roll the balls in flour and get fried balls almost as smooth as a billiard ball, but Nancy liked to drop the codfish mixture by spoonfuls into the hot fat. The edges of the balls were rough and ragged, but nice and crisp.

Team-of-Four Matches.

Team-of-Four Matches.

Team-of-four matches constitute the truest test of bridge skill available, but, unfortunately, the element of luck still is inescapable. Of course, if the contest is one of 300 or 400 hands luck is reduced to a negligible factor and the better team should win, but such contests are much too time-consuming for ordinary tourna ments. Here the average inter-team match is approximately 40 hands, un til the finals, when 60 to 100 are played.

As in single sessions of rubber

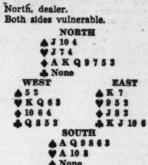

As in single sessions of rubber bridge play, the cards are apt to have decided trends. Thus it may well be that a consistent overbidder will have a veritable field day, finding every finesse successful and every suit breaking miraculously. Contrariwise, at other sessions the cards are sullen, refusing to permit the fulfilment of the most legitimate contracts, and the timid souls get unjust rewards. In both cases, it should be noted, the perfect bidder is enormously handicapped.

A Very Tricky Grand Slam.

The hand shown today was the deciding factor on the final round of a recent team-of-four championship match.

The most superficial analysis discloses that the grand slam has considerably less than an even chance for success. It should be noted that the spade king must not only be in East's hand (unless singleton in West, and declarer peeks), but must not be doubly guarded. North's only entry is by means of a club ruff, which reduces the trump holding to two cards. Thus, even if East has the king, but has at least two small trumps as well, the diamond suit never can be run. the diamond suit never can be run. East has simply to cover the second spade lead from dummy.

On a purely mathematical, non-double-dummy basis there was only one chance in four of the slam succeeding, yet with the cards as they were it was made. The goddess of luck often favors the rash.

Blood does count in Connecticut. Parents who live in that state will hesitate now to announce the engagement of their daughter until an unwith-provided the marriage were to take place in Connecticut. Otherwise they might be somewhat embarrassed, if the later report of the blood test of either of the espoused should not prove to be favorable.

On January 1, 1936, the Nutmeg state began war on the marriage of the physically unfit. The new edict requires that all persons seeking to be married in the state to submit to a laboratory blood test within 40 days of the date they apply for a marriage permit. Before the permit can be issued, they must have a physician's certificate showing them to be free from social diseases and physically fit for marriage.

And there are no easy loopholes for quack doctors to issue bogus certificates. The blood test is to be made by the laboratory of the state health department or a laboratory approved by it through the family physician of the person seeking a marriage permit.

Of this law State Health Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn said: "Effective January 1, Connecticut will begin administering what we consider one of the most stringent laws concerning marriage on the books of any state. We in Connecticut also consider it one of the most progressive laws of its kind ever drafted. . . . Long South Law.

The Baron De La Grange, a Frenchman and an old friend of ours, said at dinner last night that he felt aviation was going to mean as much to the future of the world as printing, or any of the big discoveries which have really changed civilization. He spoke of the regular trip which is made down the coast of Africa and across to South America. One leaves on schedule, arrives on schedule and causes no excitement.

When you remember the newspaper publicity with which we heralded the first trip of the clipper ship, I will confess that I was surprised to note a little item on an inside page of a newspaper a few days ago saying, "The clipper to the Philippines left today." The old-time baseball managers detested golf.

John McGraw once fined a ball player for THINKING about

And made it stick.

And how did he know the player was thinking about golf?

It happened like this. The player was the third hitter in the inning. He took his bat and strolled out from the dugout. He took his bat, went into a golf stance, and started taking a few chip-shot swings with his bat. McGraw, who was, so his players say, Argus-eyed, saw it and leaped off the bench yelling: "That golf game will cost you $10."

And it did. Which makes one for the records—the only time a man was ever fined for thinking about his game.

Most managers have discovered that golf doesn't detract om a player's baseball game. But most managers insist, as pes Eddie Moore, that the golf be played after a workout or ame. And not before. Because a player who has gone over 8 holes of golf in the morning is too tired to have any zing or baseball in the afternoon.

But the golf swing doesn't hurt a baseball swing. It may even help it since the hands are a great part of the baseball swing as well as the golf swing. They have to be. They are the only part of the body touching the

JOHNNY DOBBS BANNED GOLF.

The late Johnny Dobbs would have none of golf for his ball players.

He detested the game and was one of the last of the old guard who considered golf a sport for doddering old men or sissy young men. He often wondered, after meeting Bobby Jones, how such a fine young man could devote any time to Dobbs disliked Judge Kenesaw M. Landis because of the judge's fondness for golf. It was Dobbs' contention that baseball paid the judge $75,000 per year for taking care of baseball and that all the judge did was advertise golf.

"And," Johnny used to add, a bit venomously, "they say he is a terrible player."

JEROME HANNA DEAN.

It may be that Jerome Hanna Dean will be able to swing public sympathy around to his side of the demand for more money from the Cardinals. The Cardinals have the reputation, whether justly or not, of being a low-pay major league outfit.

And now Dizzy Dean has discovered that in 1934, for instance, Branch Rickey was drawing $47,500 per annum while he. Diz Dean, was drawing $7,500. That was the year Diz Dean and his brother, Paul, pitched the Cardinals to a pennant, a World Series triumph and a lot of money.

Dean made the Cardinals a large sum that year, and last. And he was paid about six times less than Rickey, who sat around the front office.

This does strengthen Dean's position. And all baseball Picks Atlanta Boy in List of Nation's Greatest Star Meets Hill in Semiknows that with the Yankees or most any other major league team he would be drawing $20,000 or more for each year of Sarazen, of course, does not select the team, the U. S. G. A. not having yet relinquished that little chore, but it is interesting to note that Sarazen selects Yates as one of the nation's finest amateur golfers.

The U. S. G. A., incidentally, is expected to name Yates on the real Walker cup team when it is selected for play against the British team.

(P)—The Southern Association's 1936 flag chase "looks like a horse race," Jimmy Hamilton, business manager of the Nashville Vols, observed today as he viewed the comoing season, financially and competitively, through rose-colored glasses.

Night baseball, strengthening of several clubs, and retention of power by others will make for the most interesting campaign in many years, Hamilton predicted before leaving for the Vols' spring training quarters at Tallahassee, Fla.

"Atlanta will be hard to handle," he said, "because they are the champions and have the same club. Joe Engel's Chattanooga club will be improved after Washington sends some players down there."

"Memphis and New Orleans are always up there." Hamilton declared, adding that Birmingham, Knoxville and Little Rock appeared improved and might easily surprise their rivals.

"We need a couple of pitchers and a third baseman and we'll be set, I think," he said. "Cincinnati promised some mound aid to the Vols, but nothed some mound

Georgia colleges will gather in Atlanta Saturday when the four chapters will conduct their annual tournaments in basketball and bowling. Entrants will represent the Emory, Tech. Georgia and Mercer chapters. The bowling competition will be held at Blick's and Emory will be the scene of the basketball games. A ping-pong tournament will also provide diversion at the Emory chapter house during the day.

He figures the installation of lights at Memphis, New Orleans, Birmingham and Chattanooga will boost gate receipts and, combined with the general business upturn, should enable Dixie baseball to turn the corner to predepression prosperity.

The Vol batterymen were scheduled to report to Manager Lance Richbourg at Tallahassee today, the regulars reporting March 10.

The club will break camp there April 1, returning here for a series of exhibition games before the season opens April 11.

Unsigned yet are Flint Rhem, formerly of the majors, and Grady Bassett, rookie mound prize, from the West Dixie league.

Rookie Pitcher Sustains Charley Horse; Williams, Hill Unsigned.

By Jack Troy.

GULFPORT, Miss., March 5.—Bill Schmidt, who had been traveling from Berkeley, Cal., ever since early Monday, arrived late tonight with his confract signed to virtually complete the list of Cracker pitchers.

Only Almon Williams, of Hogansville, Ga., is missing. Williams is a hold-out.

Schmidt revealed that he had four instead of two impacted wisdom teeth removed this past winter. And he feels that he will have no arm trouble at all this summer.

Al Browne, outfielder from Alameda, Cal., traveled with Schmidt.

Besides Williams, only Johnny Hill, of Douglasville, is unsigned.

GULFPORT, Miss, March 5.—For a couple of hours under cloudy skies today, Cracker catchers and pitchers went through limbering-up drills in the first workout of the season.

The high spot of the drill was the enthusiastic performance of Nig Lipscomb, young second baseman, who is not supposed to begin work until next Monday.

Lipscomb is really getting prepared for a good season. He will be in the best shape of his career when the Crackers return home.

Crackers return home.

Some may view with alarm concerning the Cracker keystone combination, but not if Buster Chatham holds up—and there is every reason to believe that he will—no fears need be expressed concerning Nig Lipscomb.

Paul Richards, tall, wiry Texan, who will bear the brunt of the Cracker catching this summer, paired up with Big Jim Lindsey in a warm-up drill. Richards really handles himself beautifully.

The pitchers found it rather rough going in the outfield shagging flies. The field is not so smooth. And the first injury of the season developed, Chester Long, a rookie pitcher, from Batesville, Miss., stepped into a miniature trench and suffered a painful Charley horse. He immediately went under the care of Trainer Johnny Shores, who worked on him with the hot towels and liniment and put him to bed.

The pitchers included Bobby Durham, Bud Thomas, Lindsey, Lawrence Miller, Ralph West, Wilbur Cook, Charles Schaff, O. D. Huey and William Anderson.

The catchers included Richards, Jim Galvin and Bill Casey.

There was much pepper practice, with Dick Niehaus, the old left-hander, and Manager Eddie Moore handling the stick. Niehaus fungoed to the pitchers and gave them a brisk opening workout.

The Crackers show only mild interest in the possibility of signing Sammy Baugh, famous for his quarterbacking at Texas Christian. Paul Richards, new Atlanta catcher, expressed the opinion his friend, "Slinging Sam," would be pleased to sign Old Diz announced today that he'd "be in there throwing punches" if Davis tries to carry out his threat to "knock his block off." The statement, however, was made while the enmity was still on a strictly amateur plane.

The mercenary element was injected when Cegil H. Lippard, Florida sportsman, offered Dean and Davis $5,000 each to square off in a ring. To make the offer even better, he offered to permit the antagonists to split 40 per cent of the gross receipts.

Mrs. Dean put her foot down on the offer. But if Lippard raised the ante to $50,000, it might be a different matter, she intimated.
"If don't know much about this fellow Davis but my husband said he was a bush leaguer and that's enough for me," the comely Mrs. Dean said.
"If Dizzy can't whip him with one hand—well, we'll retire to the minor leagues. Dizzy has not wished for any trouble with any ball players but he can hold his own in any company," she said. Old Diz announced today that he'd

Dick Shikat, who made Danno O'Mahony call "Uncle" in a wrestling match a tew days ago, is a former sailor in the German navy

I recall talking with Shikat when he first appeared in Atlanta. He told then of serving with the German navy and of being in the one brief engagement with the British forces.

After that he was a weight lifter and a champion at that. He began wrestling as an amateur and did not become a professional until 1924. He is 38 years old and can really wrestle.

Jo Jo White has been lead-off man on two pennant winners and one world's championship club. He is a better outfielder than a great many clubs have in the major leagues today. Yet all the American league teams, for some reason, waive the chance to take him from Detroit.

The "Tigah Man" from East Point and College Park will be missed. If they do let him go, I rather imagine he will be back there before many weeks have gone by. They want power at the bat. White hasn't that, but he does have something else -spirit and dash plus real ability in the outfield and on the base

SPECIAL SQUAD By Courtney Ryley Cooper

WHAT HAS GONE REFORE:
Inspector Sandy Ross, of the Department of Justice, and Special Agent Buck Wassey motor from Reno to Vinton City in search of information on Sociable Joe Willis, suspected of assisting in armored car robberles, Sociable Joe is warned by ex-Marshal Titters, at whose home the federal men have called. Sociable Joe admits having wanted money, which he says he won gambling, and which he turned over to Titters to return to the authorities. Sandy and Ross start on their way back to Reno.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT V.

The the federal men disengaged their own car, turned it around and hooked into the stalled machine from Iseno. Finally Buck was placed in the rear car, to guide it down the hill, while Sandy proceeded in the van with the girl.

"If you feel me yank back on you you'll know I'm running a little heavy on this low gear!" Buck shouted above the sound of Sandy's motor. The girl's car had been left dead.

"O. K. I'll drag you over the level spots." The start was made.
Going down the mountain, Sanderson Ross, the youngest inspector of

"O, no. Nobody knew I was coming. I thought I'd make it a surprise." Her tone changed. "There'il

"O, that car may not be hurt

"O, that car may not be hurt much."

"Well," she placed her hands in her lap and sighed, "we'll know more about that when we get to a garage I suppose they keep open at night around here."

"I think one stays open. Vinton City isn't very large."

"No—I've—I've heard it wasn't."

"Whom are you visiting there?"

The girl raised a hand to her lips, as if to stifle a cough. Or it might have been hesitation in framing an answer:

quainted in Vinton City, most of his time was spent in Reno. He looked into mining some, he said, as did his partner. She remarked that it must be interesting. Back where she came from, in Kansas City, there wasn't much that was romantic. much that was romantic. She turned then and sat for a long

She turned then and sat for a long time looking out over the tumbled hills, the spire of a deserted shafthouse in the distance, the ghostly gray of old mine dumps where the hills once had given of their fortunes.

"Minin; must be wonderful," she said finally. "You know—there must be romance in it, excitement, something different—"

"And full of risks."

"And full of risks."
"Isn't all of life?" she asked. There was a queer, aching reflection in her tone. "Risks—and heartaches?"

Sandy could not argue that point. He knew too many risks, he had seen the inside of too many prisons, watch-

He knew too many risks, he had seen the inside of too many prisons, watched oo many persons in emergency hospital wards, each with heartaches. He chunked the subject, back to mining, and the story of the old Comstock lode with its fortunes made and fortunes lost, its millionaires, its effect upon national politics, its building of far away cities from the massive stores of its wealth.

Thus they went down the mountain, with the cool breath of hill country air drifting through the lowered windows, the headlights strangely yellow against the silver of the moonlight, the outjuts of mountains and the upshoots of trees softly velvet in the paleness of the night. After a time she talked a little of home, somewhar vaguely and in generalities. She told her first name—it was Jane.

"Not plain Jane, however," thought Sandy, and wondered why. He reflected that he was influenced by this girl not because she was pleasant, not because he had frank, likeable characteristics, but because she was some one to whom he could really talk without repression, without the constant weighing of words, the etermi without repression, without the con-stant weighing of words, the etermal mental effort necessary to design a phrase so that the other person might answer in a manner to impart in-riosity.

Rather it seemed she was happy as he was happy—merely to be in the abstract, to delight in the darkened out ine of a tree against the faint blue of the sky, to dilate upon her inexperience in trying to drive a mountain road at night; back home it would have been nothing, she said, to have hired a car and made a jaunt of a comparatively few miles.

from these animals; thus their common name was established. Their name is misleading, for it is now known that these birds never milk goats and cows, and that they feed on insects which they usually catch on insects which they are at the whip-poorword will and night hawk. They lay their eggs on the bare ground usually.

They have a sharp note.

himself that it was not because an engaging girl sat beside him, voicing both her thanks and her apologies. Rather, it was something greater, which, for the moment, he could not treated that they had plenty of time for women, although many had indicated that they had plenty of time for him. There was too much to do, too many parts of the country demanding his presence, too many long stretches of work which might lead him anywhere at any time, for him to be able even to think of women. So it was not merely the presence of a girl, Yet he found himself liking this procedure of dragging down the mountain in low gear with a crippled car behind him and a feminine form outlined by the moonlight in the seat beside him. At last he said:

"Touring, I suppose?"

"I?" the girl faced him suddenly, as if pulling herself from revery. "No —I got into Reno tonight on the late bus." Then abruptly: "I'm—I'm just visiting."

"And your friends missed you at the presence of the process of the seated with the exerction?"

"I thinh I could find the place."
"Then I'll take you there."

"Then I'll take you there."
She straightened
"No thanks. I would be too much trouble. Besides, I believe I'd rather go by the garage and see how badly that car is hurt. Maybe, if it isn't smashed up too much, I could drive it up to the house and bring it back to be fixed tomorrow."

They reached the garage, towing the rented car, with Buck at the wheel, slowly through the narrow, wooden door. A long recapitulation of the night's events followed. Droken by the remarks of an oil-smeared, sleepy garage attendant. It seemed the car was not badly damaged, mostly fender and bumper trouble. Then he cocked

"How's that front car?" he asked.
"Did it get hurt? Seems to me 1 hear a knock in the engine."

The girl raised a hand to her lips, as if to stifle a cough. Or it might have been hesitation in framing an answer:

"The name is the same as mine—Bronson."

There was a rising inflection as it to ask if Sandy Ross knew the name. He replied that he was not widely acquainted in Vinton City, most of his time was spent in Reno. He looked it. Finally Buck took his turn, announcing his belief that the engine was born with that knock in its stomach. With this, all three bent forward.

Meanwhile, the girl had taken out her traveling bag and stood waiting, as though eager to leave, yet unwilling to interrupt the conference. At the open door leading to the sidewalk, the thin figure of an old man halted, looked within, then with a sudden impulse came into the garage. It was Titters, the ex-marshal, who had temporarily halted the checker game for a new supply of beer. Curiosity heavy upon him, he squinted his way along under the grimy light, at last to recognize the two federal men and increase his speed.

"Well," he asked with loud pleasure, as he rounded the car, "ain't you Gmen found the fellow you're looking for yet?"

If my visit to Hollywood had come a few month. earlier, there's one actor I'd have wanted very much to interview—Will Rogers. As it was, people spoke to me often of him, people who had known his kindly, human ways.

Among those who spoke of Will Rogers was Anne Shirley who played in one of his late pictures, "Steamboat 'Round the Bend." It seemed that she could find no words of praise too high for him.

"He was simply grand," she said. "He was simply grand," she said. "He always wanted to help young people. He did a great deal for me."

COTTON ADVANCES

ON N. Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, March 5.—(A)—Cotton was generally steady on an improved trade demand, closing net unchanged to 7 points higher.

At the best, prices were up 5 to 12 points but these gains were shaded at the close.

The trade apparently found nothing of a stimulating character in Memphis reports outlining proposals for the new farm program under the soil conservation act.

Exports today 47,795, making 4,642,721 so far this season. Port receipts 7,584. United States port stocks 2,369,424.

NEW ORLEANS, March 5.—(P)—
An apparent good demand for cotton offered by the government pool gave 1 the cotton futures market a steady at 10 point; on near months while new crop positions edged a point higher.
Foreign buyers appeared to be ready purchasers of the pool cotton and the day's export figures, especially from this port, reflected good demand aboard. Domestic spinners also were reported to have come into the ready purchases as it tapered off several points yesterday and the day before upon the announcement the government pool had resumed its sales.
Trading was quiet and comparatively light, but sellers were few and found shorts anxious to cover and some price fixing orders to take up the slack and keep the market steady. Some hedge selling accounted for occasional dips.

The opening here was steady, two proceeds and closing sales, with the final sale in that option at 11.07, or 50 cents a bale higher than yesterday. The tight spot situation with desirable types reported scarce in some quarters, was reflected in the relative firmness of even trend developed in wheat prices today, with May showing weakness CHICAGO.

Nkima's simple mind, too, was in a whirl of painful thought. If only he could find some way to help Tarzan, his adopted master. But what could a little monkey do against that pack of Leopard Men things? But wait! A bulky idea crashed

He sought out Orando, who confidently awaited Tarzan's return. The monkey chattered and grimaced and expostulated, trying to indicate Tar-zan's fate. He thought Orando was stupid not to understand, but the black warrior only laughed at these highly amusing antics.

Neither Nkima's nor Old Timer's activities held any great promise for saving Tarzan and The Kid, who were being led now to the mystic stronghold of the Leopard Men, where iron-hearted Lulimi, in his dreadful Temple of the Leopard God, ruled his empire of crime!

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINION.

COURTS & CO.—It is difficult to find detailed daily comment of interest. Holders of stocks continue reluctant to sell and new buyers and new money keeps up the pressure on the bull side.

FENNER & BEANE.—We look for a continuation of the advance and consider retail, oil and steel issues as the more promising groups. lsing groups.

BBER & CO.—Although we continue bullish, a period of quiet irregularity sometime in the next day or so would not be wholly unexpected. unexpected.

DOBBS & CO.—There is a sufficient hesi tation to warrant going slow at the moment

GRAIN OFINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—A stimulating influence badly needed and Friday's private wheat condition reports may furnish this.

FENNER & BEANE—With any broadening of the trade we look for firmer prices.

BEER & CO.—Prediction of another cold wave may be a buying incentive in wheat.

DOBBS & CO.—Some of the traders were inclined to wait the private reports which will be released Friday.

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Until the trade knows definitely whether Mr. Davis' recommendation of one and a half cents process tax will be accepted, we would expect no important price movement either way.

FENNEZ & BEANE.—Sentiment is mixed with most traders looking to the agricultural program. When fully announced and policy adopted for disposal of government's stocks to furnish fresh incentives for trading on one side or the other.

BEER & CO.—The trade is waiting for developments at the conference starting at Memphis Friday on details of operating the new farm aid bill in connection with cotton.

HUSBARD EROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—We see nothing on which to base a more positive opinion as to the immediate future of the market than the action of the senate committee in postponing the discussion on the Smith cotton disposal bill until Friday.
